an mi	"[The relationship between the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit] is one of leadership and authority on the one hand and voluntary, willing, joyful submission to that authority on the other hand. We can learn from this that submission to a rightful authority is a noble virtue. It is a privilege. It is something good and desirable. It is the virtue that has been demonstrated by the eternal Son of God forever. It is His glory, the glory of the Son as He relates to His Father." - Wayne Grudem

		"Marriage is not mainly about staying in love. It's about covenant keeping. And the main reason it is about covenant keeping is that God designed the relationship between a husband and his wife to represent the relationship between Christ and the church. This is the deepest meaning of marriage. And that is why ultimately the roles of headship and submission are so important. If our marriages are going to tell the truth about Christ and his church, we cannot be indifferent to the meaning of headship and submission. And let it not go without saying that God's purpose for the church – and for the Christian wife who represents it – is her everlasting joy." – John Piper

		"The world doesn't judge us by our theology; the world judges us by our behavior. People don't necessarily want to know what we believe about the Bible. They want to see if what we believe makes difference in our lives. Our actions either bring honor to God or misrepresent His truth." - Carolyn Mahaney

What Submission Does Not Mean:

Love (Phileo)—It is a tender, affectionate, passionate kind of love.

2) Love th	(Psalm 127:3-5)
our happ high	is the ultimate purpose of phileo kind of love? It is nothing less than the salvation of ildren's souls. This is the chief end of mothering. Our goal is not that our children be fulfilled, and successful. Granted, we may desire these things for them. But our to objective should be that our children would repent from their sins, put their trust in Christ, and reflect the gospel to the world around them." - Carolyn Mahaney Estimes at night the thought will strike me: There are three small people here, breathing by in their beds, whose lives are for the moment in our hands. I might as well be at the list of a moon shot; the mission is so grave and vast." – Joyce Maynard

fulf that assu mot and	nore than thirty years the women's movement has told us that we would be happier, moved human beings if we left our homes and children and went out to work. To the degree might feel misgivings or guilt about leaving our babies to others to raise, we have been that such feelings are imposed upon us by society, and sexist - no more normal for a reto experience than a father. Instead, we've been taught to suppress these worries put our work ahead of our families or at the very least, to attempt to 'balance' the ds of boss and baby." - Danielle Crittenden

What about working outside the home? When we contemplate opportunities outside of the home, we must first consider what consequences they might have on our families and we must evaluate our motives. Here are some good questions to ask:

- What are my reasons for considering this opportunity? Are they selfish or Godhonoring?
- Will pursuing this venture glorify God and honor the gospel?
- Is this an undertaking that will help my husband?
- Will this enhance and enrich the lives of my family?
- Does this endeavor hinder my role as caretaker of my home?

Week 4 Questions to Ponder

1.	Reflect on the talk, Biblical Womanhood in Marriage and Motherhood . How were you challenged most from this talk?
2.	How does it make you feel when you hear about the calling and role of husbands in marriage (primarily that they are called to love their wives like "Christ loved the church"? Explain.
3.	After listening to the talk, what is the biblical understanding of submission? Has your view of submission changed or grown? Explain.
4.	Who are the unbelievers (friends, neighbors, family) watching your life? How do you think you can make the gospel attractive by modeling an Ephesians 5 marriage and the virtues in Titus 2?
5.	What sin most commonly robs you of a tender (phileo) love for your husband (anger, bitterness, criticism, pride, selfishness, fear, laziness, etc.)? If you are single, what sin most commonly robs you of loving/respecting men? How can you keep your heart from this sin?
6.	What would your family (roommates) say about your typical attitude at home? What is one way you can grow in creating a joyful atmosphere in your home?
7.	In what ways have you been influenced by feminist ideology concerning being a "worker at home"? What changes do you need to implement in order to fulfill the biblical commission given in Scripture to be a "worker at home"?
8.	Spend some time this week reading and writing your observations from Proverbs 31:10-31 and the Book of Ruth. Note the qualities you see of biblical womanhood and femininity from these passages.
