1. What was one truth or principle that stood out to you most in last Thursday's message?

2. When a Christian is struggling with feelings of hopelessness and despair, what are some passages you can show them to remind them they are not the first to ever feel that way?

3. Job's friends had the right theology but lacked the sensitivity to know what to say and how to best care for Job in his suffering. What are some lessons we can learn from that scenario?

4. Job's initial response to his suffering was good, but over time his attitude began to degenerate to the point where he started to question God's wisdom and justice as his suffering wore on. What lessons can we learn from that? How can a Christian remain steadfast when the suffering has no end in sight?
