

The Night Everything Changed

Divine Interruptions Part 4

Scripture Text: Acts 16:25–34 AMP

1. Worship in the Midnight Hour (Acts 16:25)

- a. Paul and Silas prayed and sang hymns while imprisoned, and the other prisoners listened.
- b. Their worship did not deny their pain; it expressed trust in God while their circumstances remained unchanged.
- c. Our witness does not begin when everything gets better. How we trust God in difficult places can speak to those listening.

2. The Shaking That Changed Everything (Acts 16:26)

- a. We cannot assume every disruption is sent by God, but we can trust that no circumstance is beyond His reach.

3. The Grace That Refused to Leave (Acts 16:27–28)

- a. Sometimes the assignment is to remain present long enough for someone else to encounter grace.

4. The Salvation That Entered a Home (Acts 16:29–34)

- a. They spoke the word of the Lord to everyone in his house. The promise of salvation was followed by an opportunity for the whole household to hear and respond.
- b. The man who had guarded their confinement now cared for their wounds. His home became a place of hospitality and joy.

God can meet you in the midnight hour.

God can work through what shakes your world.

And God can use your presence to help someone else encounter His grace.

When life is disrupted, whose wounds might God be calling you to tend, and who might encounter Jesus through your response?
