

The Effects of Sin on the Mind, Pt. 3 (1 Cor. 2:12-14) 7/14/2019

Review

We are born with our minds radically _____.

As sinners, we simply cannot _____ properly.

Unbelievers by nature look for a _____ cause in everything.

Our thinking is _____ most significantly on the issues of maximum _____ in our life.

The thinking of man exists on three levels:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Believers and unbelievers take the same _____, give meaning to them in light of their _____ about God, then respond to _____ based on those interpretations, resulting in radically different _____.

The _____ unbelievers get to issues that have to do with God, the ultimate _____ of life, and the problems that plague humanity, the _____ will be the impact of the noetic effects of sin on their thinking and the more _____ Christians must be in accepting the information they produce.

Guiding Principles for Christian Thinking

The two primary guiding principles:

1. _____ God and _____ Him.

2. _____ God and neighbor.

Our Thinking Regarding the Past

The secular mindset starts with the assumption that we're all helpless _____.

Remembering what God says to remember plays a significant role in how you live, feel, and _____.

Examples of what Scripture commands us to remember:

God reminds us of the _____ so that we will observe it, interpret it from His _____, and then make life applications that lead to proper _____ of Him.

There is no event in history that is not _____.

We are never called to remember the past for the past's _____.

Notes on the past from 1 Corinthians 10:1-13:

Examples:

- A. _____

- B. The Lord's _____

- C. _____

Notes on the believer's view of the past from Ephesians 4:17-24:

Believers must interpret _____ and our own past in terms of God's sovereign will and respond to that in ways that most _____ and enjoy Him and that _____ Him and our neighbor.