נֹקֵד נֹקֵד noqed – sheep breeder

These men or women selectively bred sheep for best qualities. It is possible נֹקֵדִים noqedim traveled to various ranches offering advice, much as state agricultural extension agents do in America today.

7:14 So Amos answered Amaziah, “I was not a prophet or the son of a prophet; rather, I was a herdsman, and I took care of sycamore figs.

בלס boles – scratched the fruit before harvest

Sycamore figs are not true figs but are a tree of the mulberry family which produces a fig-like fruit. Two or three days before harvest each fruit must be scratched or pierced to let the juice flow out so the ‘fig’ can ripen. – Charles Dyer

It seems the best to understand that Amos is like an extension agent of an American agricultural university.

¹ The words of Amos, who was one of the sheep breeders from Tekoa—what he saw regarding Israel in the days of King Uzziah of Judah and Jeroboam son of Jehoash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake.

Amos 7 CSB

The two kings Amos mentions reigned in that period around the earthquake: Uzziah of Judah (790-739) and Jeroboam II (793-755). Despite the quake, this was a period of prosperity in Judah and great wealth in Israel.

Rembrandt
Man in Oriental Garb (Uzziah)
1635

In the first half of the 8th c. B.C.E., owing to Syria's decline and Assyria's turmoil at home, Judah and Israel prospered...During this period of Assyrian weakness both Israel and Judah had strong kings who enjoyed long reigns: Jeroboam II of Israel (786-746) and Uzziah (Azariah) of Judah (783-742)...Despite the outstanding leadership of Uzziah, Judah continued to be materially overshadowed by the Northern Kingdom of Israel during the reign of Jeroboam II. – Philip J. King, Amos, Hosea, and Micah – an Archeological Commentary

Under these kings, wealth began to accrue among the Hebrews. However, some of the nouveau riche became oppressive. Especially in Israel, a wave of landholding consolidation occurred. Affluent people offered farm loans at exorbitant rates forbidden by God's Law. When the farm owners couldn't pay up, their land was foreclosed. The families were also often enslaved, again in contravention of God's Law.

Amos was not so strongly influenced by the cult [priestly & religious structures] as by wisdom literature. The available evidence seems to establish him as an intelligent, informed layman who took his religion seriously. – Hans Walter Wolff, Amos' geistige Heimat

Amos' use of metonymy – the substitution of one term for another as a form of summary or to show cause/effect – displays fine writing skill. Metonymy appears in 4:6, 4:9, 5:5, and 9:11. [Note: some also include 5:7 & 6:12.]

11 I will raise up the fallen shelter of David.

Amos 9 CSB

Irony is found in 4:4 where Israel is invited to Bethel to transgress, in 4:5 where Israel is told to proclaim and publish their freewill offerings (which is contrary to the very spirit of such gifts), in 6:5 where David is mentioned in comparison with the indolent and revelers, and in 8:5,6 where the prophet ironically puts his own words into the mouths of those he denounces. – Larry Walker, “The Language of Amos”

Parallelism is the crux of almost all Ancient Near Eastern writing, and the Hebrew poets and prophets proved masters of the technique. Most prophecies are penned as poetry specifically to take advantage of the power of parallelism – allowing simple terminology to birth vivid imagery.

THE KINGDOMS OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH
1 KINGS 12

One problem with religion in the northern kingdom was that it was conducted at cult shrines like Bethel. These were not authorized by God and were actually an abomination to Him, as becomes clear in the prophecy. So Amos states the place from which God speaks: Jerusalem.

Paul Hahn: I am blessed to be able to ponder.

Jerome Lackey: It is important that we ponder, wonder, and respond to God the Creator.

On average, we Americans check our phones some two hundred times a day, or about once every five waking minutes...Life looks drab in the smartphone's glow. You don't need to be addicted to your phone, however, to lose your wonder. Many of us like getting things done – and fast. People made in the image of a creative God ought to value productivity. But “the cult of productivity” is something different. Those shaped by this cult have little patience for stillness and silence, meditation and marveling. Unproductive feels unbearable. So then, the phone and the to-do list, entertainment and efficiency – these are the enemies that steal our wonder. – Scott Hubbard, “Be Still and Wonder”

The name should thus be understood as referring to Yahweh's being the creator and sustainer of all that exists and thus the Lord of both creation and history, all that is and all that is happening—a God active and present in historical affairs. – D.K. Stuart, Exodus

PSALM 46:10

² He said:

The Lord roars from Zion

Amos 1 CSB

“And now,” said Aslan presently, “to business...I am going to roar.”

And Aslan stood up and when he opened his mouth to roar his face became so terrible that they did not dare look at it. And they saw all the trees in front of him bend before the blast of his roaring as grass bends in a meadow before the wind.

– C.S. Lewis, The Lion, the Witch, and the Wardrobe

God sent Amos with his prediction of judgment and coming doom. Have you ever heard a lion roar? The sound frightens you and makes chills run up and down your spine, even when you know the lion is behind strong bars at the zoo.

That is what Amos says God was now doing. The Lord was roaring from Zion, thundering from Jerusalem to frighten those who were about to become the lion's prey.

– James Boice, The Minor Prophets

There's something powerful, overwhelming, and motivating about a roar. Whether it's the roar of a crowd cheering you on or the roar of a jet engine rushing by, a roar is impossible to ignore—it commands your full attention. God's roar is actually an act of kindness, awakening us and forcing us to listen.
