The Gospel Entrusted to Us

“According to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which was committed to my trust.”—1 Timothy 1:11

“For which cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together against the LORD: and what is Aaron, that ye murmur against him?”—Numbers 16:11

Paul reminds Timothy that the gospel was “committed to my trust.”

Ministry is not a personal possession — it is a sacred stewardship placed in a servant's hands by God. The proper perspective of your calling means you recognize that what you carry belongs to God, and you are responsible to guard it faithfully.

In Numbers 16, Korah and his company challenged Moses and Aaron's God-given leadership. But God said their complaint was not ultimately against men — it was “against the LORD.” When God entrusts responsibility to a servant, resisting that divine order becomes resistance to His authority.

The lesson is clear: what God commits to us must be protected with humility and faithfulness.

A servant of God must not defend his position out of pride, but out of reverence for the trust placed in him. Likewise, believers must be careful not to treat lightly the roles and responsibilities God assigns.

Every calling is a stewardship. Whether preaching, serving, or leading, we are caretakers of something precious that belongs to God.

Moses guarding God's order.

When Korah rebelled (Numbers 16), Moses did not fight for personal honor. He fell on his face before God (Numbers 16:4), showing humility while standing firm in his calling. God Himself defended the authority He had established. Faithful laborers live by this gospel principle: God's servants must trust God to uphold what He has entrusted to them.

Paul defending his stewardship.

In Galatians 1:6–9, Paul strongly defended the purity of the gospel when false teachers tried to corrupt it: "...though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel... let him be accursed."

Paul guarded the gospel because it had been committed to his trust. He understood that altering or surrendering that message would be unfaithfulness to God.

A true steward protects what God has entrusted, even when facing opposition.

What God commits to your care is not yours to reshape or surrender.

Like Moses and Paul, we are called to guard a sacred trust — humbly, courageously, and faithfully — remembering that we answer first to the Lord who entrusted it.

“Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.” —
1 Corinthians 4:2.
