“Come up higher and change your perspective of worship”

Why We Struggle to Worship Without Asking

“From now on, worshiping the Father will not be a matter of the right place but with the right heart. For God is Spirit, and He longs to have sincere worshipers who worship and adore Him in the realm of spirit and in truth.”

— John 4:23 (TPT)

One of the clearest indicators of our spiritual formation is what we do when we enter The Father’s presence.

Most of us don’t struggle to pray.

We struggle to be quiet.

Silence exposes motivation.

We’ve learned—often unintentionally—to approach Him with a list.

Needs. Requests. Concerns. Problems to fix. Outcomes to secure.

And while The Father is gracious, loving, and generous, worship was never designed to be a transaction.

“When worship becomes a means to an end, Jesus is no longer the end—Jesus is no longer the focus.”

This is why worship without asking feels uncomfortable.

It removes leverage.

It removes control.

It removes the illusion that we are managing the encounter.

Jesus didn’t say the Father is seeking people with the right requests.

He said the Father is seeking worshipers.

“When worship becomes a tool, it actually becomes a tool of manipulation.”

Worship without asking reveals a simple truth:

If nothing changed, would He still be enough?

True worship doesn’t begin with desperation.

It begins with revelation.

Today's Invitation

Set aside time today to worship without asking for anything.

No requests.

No declarations.

No outcomes.

Just attention.

Just affection.

Just presence.

Have a great day!,
