WELLNESS CORNER

FALL INTO WELLNESS

Small Choices. Stronger Health. Healthier Communities

A MESSAGE TO OUR NDCBF COMMUNITY

October is a natural time to pause, reset and take inventory of our health.

As schedules become busier with work, family, school, community activities and seasonal events, it can be easy to put our own health on the back burner.

This month, let's change that.

Wellness doesn't require perfection. It requires awareness, intention and consistency.

A healthier life can begin with simple choices:

- Taking a daily walk
- Drinking more water
- Adding another serving of vegetables
- Getting adequate sleep
- Scheduling a preventive appointment
- Managing stress
- Staying connected with people who support you

Your health is worth your attention.

And healthier individuals help create healthier families and stronger communities.

KNOW YOUR NUMBERS. KNOW YOUR BODY.

Prevention begins with awareness.

You can feel well and still have health measures that deserve attention. Talk with your healthcare professional about the screenings and measurements appropriate for your age, family history and individual risk factors.

Consider keeping track of:

Blood Pressure — High blood pressure often has no obvious symptoms.

Blood Sugar — Glucose and A1C testing can provide information about blood-sugar regulation and diabetes risk.

Cholesterol — A lipid panel provides information about cholesterol and triglycerides and can be considered alongside other cardiovascular risk factors.

Bone Health — Ask whether bone-density screening is appropriate for you.

Vision & Dental Health — Regular vision and dental care are important parts of preventive health.

Recommended Screenings — Stay current with age- and risk-appropriate preventive screenings.
Don't wait until something feels wrong to pay attention to your health.

Move regularly. Eat nourishing foods. Know your blood pressure and cholesterol. Manage blood sugar. Don't smoke. Get adequate sleep. Manage stress. Keep recommended healthcare appointments.

HYDRATION MATTERS

Cooler weather doesn't mean your body stops needing fluids.

- Make hydration easier:
- Keep water nearby
 - Drink throughout the day
 - Have water with meals
 - Drink before, during and after physical activity
 - Choose water instead of sugary beverages more often

If you have a medical condition requiring fluid restriction, follow your healthcare professional's guidance.

Building healthier individuals. Strengthening families. Supporting healthier communities.

This provides general health and wellness education and does not replace individualized medical advice, diagnosis or treatment. Consult an appropriately licensed healthcare professional regarding your personal health needs, screenings, medications and treatment decisions. In an emergency, call 911.
