Summary

In this sermon, Pastor Keith draws from Galatians 6:7-10 to challenge believers to keep sowing good seeds and to trust God for the harvest, even when results are not immediately visible. Using the familiar imagery of farming and gardening, he explains that the principle of sowing and reaping is not only natural but deeply spiritual. Just as a farmer plants in faith and waits patiently for the harvest, Christians are called to sow into prayer, God's Word, relationships, and the lives of others, trusting that God will bring the increase in His timing. The sermon also warns against sowing to the flesh, which leads to corruption and spiritual decay, while encouraging believers to sow to the Spirit, which produces everlasting life. Pastor Keith urges the congregation not to grow weary in doing good, to look for every opportunity to encourage fellow believers, and to remain faithful even when the harvest seems delayed. He reminds the church that seeds planted today may bear fruit long after we are gone, and that staying connected to the body of Christ is essential as we anticipate the return of Jesus.

Intro Prayer

Heavenly Father, we come before You today with open hearts and willing spirits. As we gather to discuss Your Word, we ask that Your Holy Spirit would move among us, illuminating our minds and softening our hearts. Help us to set aside distractions and personal agendas so that we can hear clearly what You want to speak to each of us today. Give us eyes to see the seeds You are calling us to sow, and the faith to trust You for the harvest. May this time together draw us closer to You and to one another. In Jesus' name, amen.

Ice Breaker

What is something you have worked hard at for a long time before finally seeing results, and how did it feel when those results finally came?

Key Verses

- Galatians 6:7-10
- Mark 4:3-20
- John 10:10

- Matthew 6:33
- Isaiah 55:11
- Hebrews 10:25

Questions

- In Galatians 6:7, Paul says 'Do not be deceived.' What are some common lies or deceptions that can cause believers to stop sowing good seeds in their spiritual lives?
- The sermon compared different types of soil from the Parable of the Sower in Mark 4 to the condition of our hearts. Which type of soil do you feel best describes where you are spiritually right now, and why?
- Pastor Keith talked about sowing to the flesh versus sowing to the Spirit. What are some practical, everyday examples of each, and how can we tell the difference in our own lives?
- The sermon emphasized that a harvest takes time and patience. Can you share a time when you almost gave up on something you were trusting God for, and what kept you going?
- Galatians 6:9 (ESV) says, 'And let us not grow weary of doing good, for in due season we will reap, if we do not give up.' What are some specific areas of your life where you feel tempted to grow weary or give up right now?
- Pastor Keith mentioned that some missionaries never saw a single convert, yet revival broke out after they were gone. How does this challenge the way we measure success in our spiritual lives and ministry efforts?
- Galatians 6:10 (ESV) says, 'So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to everyone, and especially to those who are of the household of faith.' How are you currently encouraging and investing in the people around you in the church?
- Hebrews 10:25 (ESV) warns us not to neglect meeting together, especially as we see the day of Christ's return approaching. Why do you think consistent community with other believers is so important for staying faithful in our sowing?

Life Application

This week, identify one specific area of your life where you have stopped sowing or have grown weary, whether it is prayer, reading Scripture, encouraging a family member, or serving someone in need. Make a deliberate decision to plant one good seed in that area every day this week. Write it down, tell someone in your group for accountability, and trust God to bring the harvest in His timing.

Key Takeaways

- The principle of sowing and reaping is both natural and spiritual. What we consistently invest in, whether fleshly desires or godly pursuits, will determine the kind of fruit we produce in our lives.
- God is not mocked, and His standards do not change. The consequences of our choices are real, which means our daily decisions carry lasting spiritual weight.
- Patience and perseverance are essential to the Christian life. Seeds take time to grow, and we must not give up or plow up what God is still working on beneath the surface.
- We are called to sow good seeds into the lives of others, especially fellow believers, through encouragement, prayer, and acts of service, because the harvest may come long after we have planted.
- Staying connected to the body of Christ through regular fellowship is not optional. It is a vital source of strength and encouragement that keeps us from growing weary as we await the return of Jesus.

Ending Prayer

Lord, we thank You for the truth of Your Word and for the reminder that You are faithful to bring a harvest from every good seed sown in Your name. As we leave this time together, help us to resist the temptation to grow weary. Give us the courage to keep praying, keep serving, keep loving, and keep trusting You even when we cannot see the fruit yet. Remind us that our labor in You is never in vain. Strengthen us to encourage one another, to look for opportunities to do good, and to stay ready for the day when Jesus returns. May the seeds we plant today bear fruit that lasts for eternity. In Jesus' name, amen.
