5. You Have Been Touched to Touch Others:

Psychology of Touch:

When someone touches you properly, (WHEN TOUCHED IMPROPER HAS IT'S OWN ISSUES) you hardly notice it at all, but what happens inside your body is a massive change. Physical contact releases dopamine, oxytocin, and serotonin in your brain [5]—the happy chemicals. At the same time, it lowers your cortisol levels—the stress hormone—which slows your heart rate, reduces feelings of stress, and lessens the fight or flight reaction you may be having. Basically, you relax!
