ANNOUNCEMENTS

JEREMY BRADLEY OF CARING FAMILIES

Please welcome Jeremy Bradley the Executive Director of Caring Families in Willimantic, CT. Caring Families is a faith-based 501(c)3 non-profit in Connecticut. They do not receive any state or federal funding, but depend on the generosity of donors like us who want to bring help, hope and healing to the women of Connecticut faced with an unexpected pregnancy.

The Mission of Caring Families is to empower individuals to make informed decisions for life. They serve the women and men of our community by providing spiritual, emotional, educational, and material support to them as they seek help with pregnancy related issues. Caring Families feels that no one should ever have to walk through a pregnancy decision alone.

By showing love, support and care, their vision is to bring hope, help and healing to difficult situations. A woman, they feel, should not feel like an abortion is her only option. With the help of their community, they can bring love, resources and compassion to Connecticut to make this a reality.

Through the Women's Center of Eastern CT and Mobile Care mobile van, they are able to provide pregnancy testing, ultrasounds, and education on options beyond abortion. They provide community referrals, and client education on healthy relationships, STI and sexual integrity. They also offer parenting, mentoring and fatherhood classes, as well as giving material support (diapers, wipes, etc.).
