

Amazing Things are Happening Under Your Feet

Last Saturday night, many of our UCSC students were having a good time in the student section of the MSU football stadium. I know I did not get home early, and I know many of them left after me. But I also know where almost 60 of them were Sunday morning at 9:15 –they were at Breakfast and the Bible In the UCSC. Volunteer students provided breakfast and the group had a Bible class focused on “How to read the Bible for all its worth.” Why do I tell you this? Because every Sunday that I go down there, it lifts me up. It reminds me that we have a fantastic set of college students who love the Lord and are passionate about growing in Christ.

I want you to know also that several of the UCSC members came from our youth group and carried their passion for Christ straight over to the UCSC. I am so proud of what I call the “Starkville Table” during Sunday Morning.

Sunday night, many of these students are in small groups. Tuesday night in prayer groups, Wednesday night suppers cooked mainly by college students, and then a mid-week college class. Some of these students will lead our Sunday morning worship service in a few weeks.

In my 26 years here, I have never doubted that we know the UCSC gives our congregation a vital purpose and mission field. It also gives us hope -- it gives us vibrance -- and it gives us a spark. Many residential members rarely check out the hive of activity beneath the auditorium. A trip downstairs might really lift you up.
