Philippians 3:4-11

If we can consider our lives as a transaction log, what would we consider as "gains" and "losses" in terms of the gospel? Paul shares what his pre-conversion self interpreted as righteousness versus his post-conversion self, and it's radically different.

Consider the confidence that you've had in your flesh regarding religious right-standing with God. How have you been tempted to believe in a self-righteous understanding of salvation? How do you best understand it now?

Paul gives an account of what his pre-conversion "GAINS" column looked like. Can you list them from Philippians 3:4-6?

Consider your religious accomplishments. How would you list your "GAINS" column if you had confidence in the flesh?

Does your confidence in Christ allow you to see how all of those should be considered "LOSSES"?

Knowing that your own righteousness doesn't bring you into right-standing with God, how does this free you up to simply delighting in Christ?
