Homework Read: Psalms 150:1-6 What did they have to do with everything they had?

Instruction: Read the text in your bible. Answer the questions; there is no wrong answer. The questions are designed to help you see what God is doing in your life. Think about what God is saying to you. Ask God to reveal things to you so you can grow and share with the group.

You can Text Your Questions to (973) 449-1104

The Music invites us to shift our vision from mere words of thanks to worship that transforms our hearts and homes. In Psalm 100, the psalmist calls all the earth to "Shout for joy to the LORD, all the earth. Worship the LORD with gladness; come before him with joyful songs." Then, in Psalm 101, David commits to live with integrity, to protect his heart, and to walk in the presence of God.

The natural act is music singing, instruments, thanksgiving. The supernatural vision is that our voices become portals, our joy becomes declaration, and our homes become sanctuaries of praise. The psalmist doesn't just invite us to worship when everything is going well he invites us to make praise foundational to our identity and decisions. The gate we enter becomes a sign of what we bring to God's presence.

God reveals Himself here as both Creator and King worthy of gladness and praise—yet intimately concerned with the condition of our hearts and the truth of our lives. He calls us into worship that is not just heard but lived. And He invites us to express gratitude through character, not just cadence.

As you dive into this study, pause to reflect:

- How often do you approach God's "gates" with worship from your heart, not just your lips?
- In what areas of your life does your music of worship need to align with your integrity and actions?
- How might your gratitude change your vision of God—and the vision God gives you for your relationships and choices?

The Music reminds us that our praise is both a present offering and a future vision. Let your attention to God become your anthem.
