

The background image is a dark, atmospheric photograph of an ancient site, likely the ruins of the Temple of Apollo in Side, Turkey. In the foreground, there are large, weathered stone blocks and a partially visible classical column on the right. The middle ground shows more ruins and a valley with some trees. The sky is filled with heavy, dark clouds, creating a somber and mysterious mood. The text is overlaid in the center of the image.

How?

The background image is a dark, atmospheric landscape. On the right side, a portion of a classical building with a fluted column and a decorative capital is visible. The foreground is filled with large, dark, moss-covered stone blocks and rubble. A small, light-colored, rectangular object, possibly a book or a tablet, rests on one of the stone blocks in the lower right foreground. The sky is dark and cloudy, with a hint of light breaking through on the right side.

This is the point:
To add law to grace, destroys grace!
