Reflection

Have you ever met someone with a story or even heard a story that impacted you? What about the story was impactful to you? How did it make you feel?

Knowing that every life story has value to it, what could be the benefit of making known the value of another person's story?

In the past, what has prevented you from being vulnerable with others? How can you change that going forward?

In what ways can you use your story at home, at work, and at school to make disciples?
