TAKE IT WITH YOU

I've been reading the Bible for as long as I can remember. Between Sunday School, VBS, Sunday morning worship, personal devotions and Bible study, I've read a lot of the Bible (although I do have to confess I have never read it all the way through). My 18-year-old self foolishly thought that all those years of reading the Bible would mean that Introduction to the Old Testament and New Testament classes in college would be a breeze...she was woefully incorrect!

Lately, my reading and studying of the Bible has led me to the question of how the words in the Bible survived all the years that they did to become the collection of scriptures that we now have. I know-thanks to those aforementioned college classes-some details of how the books of the Bible were assembled. But I am more curious about the granular details: how did the words prayed by David, by Samuel, by Nehemiah survive? These weren't speeches, spoken to giant crowds. It's safe to assume that at least some of the prayers recorded in scripture were prayed in private, with no one to witness and record them. So how do we know what these giants of the faith prayed?

The easiest answer is that they wrote them down. Evidently, the concept of prayer journals goes way back. I don't know if Nehemiah wrote down his plea to God with the intention that it would influence prayers of people thousands of years later. Likely, he wrote them down for the same reason that people who write their prayers today do so: because it helps them process their thoughts, their emotions, their desires; to bring their scattered thoughts into some semblance of order.

Does this mean we need to write our prayers as if they will be read thousands of years from now? No; that's a lot of pressure, and certainly not the point of prayer. Of course, it's not mandatory to write your prayers at all; it's just one possible way to approach that holy communication. It is just somewhat of a comfort to have that point of connection to people who seem so far removed from us in every way. Nehemiah lived and wrote his words about 2500 years ago; his life experience could not have been much more different than the experience of our lives. He had influence over the most powerful person in the world at the time. But, he wrote down his prayers. He prayed and God listened. We pray, and God is listening.

INFLUENCER | SEIZE THE CRISIS

In this series, we are considering the life and leadership of Nehemiah. While he is not what is today considered a "Professional Influencer, leveraging Social Media Skills", he is an influencer, creating Social and Spiritual change. His life reveals traits of a Good Influencer we can emulate as ambassadors of Jesus.

Traits of a Good InfluenceR covered so far:

Acute Perception:

- a) the ability to see what is and what it means.
- b) the ability to see what should not be and what could be instead.

Passionate Affinity:

caring deeply enough to move beyond emotion and sentiment to helpful action.

Divine Alignment (the most important):

- a) seeking to be "on God's side".
- b) seeking to make the priorities of your life align with the priorities of God's word.

Today we see Nehemiah at a crisis point and uncover the fourth trait of a Good InfluenceR, which places him in this dangerous opportunity.

Proven _____

Nehemiah 1:11c

Crisis Averted or Crisis Seized

Nehemiah 2:2

Risky Response

Nehemiah 2:3

The King Wants to know & Nehemiah wants to go

Nehemiah 2:4-5

Powerful Approval

Nehemiah 2:6

Divine Alignment

Nehemiah 2:7-8

Prayer Exercise

Simple Divine Alignment Prayer

God lead me to see what you see.

Move me to care about what you care about.

Simple Crisis Prayer

God give me the wisdom to know what to do and the courage to do it.

Trusting Prayer

I trust you, God, to use me and the abilities you have given me in the place you have put me.

Thinking Exercise

Proven Ability

How am I using and developing my gifts, skills and talents for "should be" and "could be"?

In what ways am I being trustworthy with my abilities and the place He currently has me?
