

Today, we begin a new series through 1 Corinthians called 11 Dangers for Every Christian. Throughout this study, we will look at several warnings Paul gives that are just as relevant for us today as they were for the church in Corinth. We begin with the danger of division and consider what threatens unity in our own lives and what it looks like to become people who actively pursue peace, reconciliation, and oneness in the church.

Key Passage: 1 Corinthians 1:10-17

Discussion Questions:

2. What does Christian unity require—and what does it not require?
3. Why can relationships within the church sometimes be difficult even among sincere believers?
4. Paul says believers should be “united” in verse 10. What does that picture teach us about broken relationships?
5. Read 1 Corinthians 1:11–12. What had begun to divide the Corinthian church?
6. Why is our identity in Christ more important than the personalities, ministries, or preferences we are drawn toward?
7. What do Paul’s questions in verse 13 reveal about the real foundation of Christian unity?
8. Read 1 Corinthians 1:17. Why does Paul bring the gospel into a discussion about division?
