5-Day Bible Reading Plan and Devotional Guide; It's Not Fair!?

Themes: Gratitude, Faithfulness, Contentment, Service, and Trust in God's Sovereignty

---

Day 1: The Comparison Trap Reading: Matthew 25:14-30

Devotional: God does not distribute blessings equally, but He does hold each person equally responsible for what they have been given. The temptation to measure your portion against someone else's is as old as human nature itself. When you fix your eyes on what another person has received, you stop seeing what God has placed in your own hands. Jealousy, envy, and greed are not just moral failures — they are acts of ingratitude toward a God who has been deliberate and purposeful in what He has entrusted to you.

Today, resist the urge to compare. Instead, ask God what He is asking you to do with exactly what you have. Write 1 blessing in your 25 Days of Thanksgiving Journal.

Day 2: Follow Me, Not Them Reading: John 21:18-22

Devotional: Peter had just received a hard word from Jesus about his future, and his immediate response was to look at another disciple and ask what would happen to him. It is a deeply human reaction. When God calls us to a difficult path, we instinctively look around to see if others are being asked to carry the same weight. In John 21:22, Jesus redirects Peter with a word that cuts through every comparison: what another person's journey looks like is not Peter's concern. His only concern is to follow. That same call belongs to you today.

Whatever someone else is or is not walking through, your assignment remains the same. Write 1 blessing in your 25 Days of Thanksgiving Journal.

Day 3: Contentment in Unequal Grace Reading: Philippians 4:11-13

Devotional: Paul writes in Philippians 4:11-13 that contentment is not a feeling that arrives on its own — it is something learned. That word "learned" matters. It means contentment is a process, not a destination. It is forged through seasons of plenty and seasons of need, through moments when life feels fair and moments when it absolutely does not. Jealousy, envy, and greed thrive in the absence of contentment. They fill the space where gratitude has not yet taken root. Today, consider one area of your life where discontentment has quietly settled in.

Bring it honestly before God and ask Him to begin the slow, faithful work of teaching you to be content there. Write 1 blessing in your 25 Days of Thanksgiving Journal.

Day 4: The Consuming Fire of Self Reading: Proverbs 14:30

Devotional: Proverbs 14:30 describes envy as something that rots the bones — a decay that works from the inside out, unseen until the damage is already done. Jealousy, envy, and greed do not just harm your relationships with others; they hollow out your capacity to experience God's joy and blessing in your own life. When your energy is consumed with what others have or what you feel you deserve, you become blind to the evidence of God's faithfulness already surrounding you. Confession is the first step toward healing.

Ask God today to reveal any hidden root of envy in your heart and to replace it with genuine gratitude for His provision. Write 1 blessing in your 25 Days of Thanksgiving Journal.

Day 5: Gratitude as an Act of Worship Reading: Psalm 1:1-3

Devotional: Psalm 1:1-3 describes the person who meditates on God's word as a tree planted beside streams of water — fruitful, stable, and sustained. That image stands in direct contrast to the restless, consuming nature of comparison and ingratitude. Gratitude is not merely a positive attitude. It is a spiritual discipline that roots you in the truth of who God is and what He has already done.

This month, begin a simple practice: write down one specific thing you are thankful for each day. Not a category, but a specific moment, person, or provision. Over time, those small acts of recorded gratitude become a testimony of God's faithfulness that no season of difficulty can take from you. Write 1 blessing in your 25 Days of Thanksgiving Journal.