

In the curse, conflict and confusion between men and women became much more common than companionship and community. It was only when God became flesh that we could truly understand what relationship between one another should look like. Reversing the curse between men and women begins by looking to the example of Jesus as man, as God fully intended man to be.