

In 2 Corinthians 8:1-15, Paul describes an extraordinary group of Christians who were so transformed by God's grace that they begged for the opportunity to give, even in the midst of poverty and hardship. Their example reveals a powerful truth: when we truly understand the grace we have received, generosity becomes our response, not our obligation.

God's grace has been shown _____ you so that God's grace might be shown _____ you.

God measures your gift on the basis of what you have the _____ to give.

The real key to being generous is to first give _____ to the Lord.

Genuine Christian love expresses itself in a _____ to give.

Jesus was so generous that he was willing to give up _____ to come to this earth.

The more we understand God's _____, the more _____ we should be.

We struggle with being generous because we are _____.

Once we give ourselves to the Lord, we understand that it's not my money to spend on what _____ want, it's God's money to spend on what _____ wants.
