

As we begin our journey through 2 Corinthians, Paul reminds us that God often does His greatest work through broken people. Rather than remaining safely in the “balcony,” watching and judging those who are struggling, God calls us to become “Travelers”—people willing to step into the messiness of life, depend upon His comfort, and use what we have experienced to encourage others.

Broken people are people who _____ their _____ for God.

It is out of our brokenness that God _____ to reach a broken world.

God’s method of reaching out to lost people is _____.

God allows us to go through _____ so that we can _____ to others who are suffering.

Am I a _____ or am I a _____?

The greatest spiritual _____ you have at your disposal is _____.

“God _____ broken people like you and me to _____ broken people like you and me.” ~Helen Baylor
