

In 2 Corinthians 9:1-15, Paul reminds us that God blesses us not simply for our own benefit, but so we can bless others. Through the principle of sowing and reaping, he challenges us to give generously and cheerfully, trusting God to provide for our needs. When we use God's blessings to help others, we demonstrate the transforming power of the gospel and bring glory to His name. The question is not whether God has blessed us, but how we will use those blessings to bless others.

We shouldn't give because we _____ to give, but because we _____ to give.

When you give to God, you are not giving it _____.

Whatever you give to God, you ultimately get to _____; but whatever you keep, you ultimately _____.

Our giving is not based on manipulation or the emotion of the moment, it's something that is _____ and _____ done.

If we are generous with what we _____, God will generously provide everything we _____.

Do we _____ that God is telling the _____ when he says that when we give generously, he will take care of all our needs?

God gives us a bountiful harvest so that we can take that harvest and _____ it _____ to bless others.

One of the greatest ways we can witness to a _____ culture is through our _____.