

This message from Paul reminds us that life in this world is temporary, even when its struggles feel overwhelming and very real. In 2 Corinthians 4:16–5:10, Paul encourages us not to lose heart but to fix our eyes on what cannot be seen—the eternal glory that lies ahead. Because we live by faith and not by sight, we can face today's trials with confidence, knowing that something far better is coming.

We all live in _____ that things will get _____.

Compared to what lies ahead, our present troubles are _____.

Our present _____ are producing a _____ that we will experience later.

The things that will last _____ are the things that are real.

Our current body is _____, but there is an _____ part of us that will live on for eternity.

Outwardly we are _____; inwardly we are being _____ day by day.

The Holy Spirit is our _____ that God will fulfill his promises to us about what will come.

Our job is to use our body in every way to _____ God and lift him up.

We _____ that God raised Jesus from the dead and because of that, we _____ that he will also raise us from the dead.
