

Although the world lives with the end in mind, in Jesus our story is not a story of ends. As believers, we live with the beginning in mind. Jesus, our King, has repurposed death into a victorious rally cry that will echo throughout eternity. The curse of sin has no claim over us, as the cross of Christ has paid the price. Death's sting has no hold on us—the tomb is empty. As followers of the way of Jesus, our aim is heaven, our hope is tethered to this story of beginnings, and our hands are engaged in reversing the curse. Through Jesus, everything sad is coming untrue.
