Community Group Questions: Judges 6-8

- When life gets frustrating, or things don't work like "they're supposed to," how does it affect your faith in God's presence?
- Some people believe when bad things happen to them it is because they did something to make God upset. Do you think there is a difference between God's discipline and natural consequences of your own decisions? If so, how can you tell the difference?
- We have been talking a lot about how to identify the idols in our lives. But what idols around us do you think were setup by previous generations? What would it take to get rid of those idols?
- When we read these stories, we often try to apply them by confronting idols in our nation/state. Do you think we give similar attention to idols in our own homes? If so, which do you think we are more effective at confronting? If not, why do you think we pay more attention to the idols of others than our own?
- Idols often break promises that break our hearts. How would you describe the feeling of disappointment in your idols? Specifically, how do you handle your disorienting questions? How do you find new reliable places to put your trust? Is it tough for you to risk believing in someone/something again?
