

3. There is no shortage of the command to “love one another” in this list. Using other commands from this list, how would you further explain or define the kind of love Christ calls us to in His Word?

4. In John 13, Jesus commands His disciples to, “love one another just as I have loved you.” While this chapter begins with a vivid display of Jesus’ love, it also points to an even greater act of love that is yet to come; i.e., the cross. Take some time to explain how the love of Christ (particularly His death on the cross and resurrection) has transformed your life.

5. How does Christ’s love compel you to love others, particularly by sharing the Gospel with them? (See 2 Corinthians 5:13-21.)

6. Read Ephesians 4:32 and Colossians 3:13 (among other passages on this list). How does the forgiveness of Christ compel you to forgive others?

7. One of the greatest joys of the Christian life—fellowship with other believers—often appears to be one of the greatest causes of controversy and conflict. According to James 4, where do these two problems really come from? What advice does James offer as a solution to these problems? (See verses 6-8, 10-11, in particular.)

How does humbling ourselves in the sight of God and others actually lead us to unity and peace instead of quarreling and division?

8. What are some ways that you have recently obeyed the commands to “offer hospitality to” (1 Peter 4:9) and “teach and admonish” (Colossians 3:16) one another? How can our church improve in these areas?
