CONVICTION

In the Bible, righteous anger is a godly and controlled response to sin, injustice, or rebellion against God's will. It should never motivate personal injury or our preference. It should reflect God's heart for what is right and call to action to resolve conflict with love and self-control, like when Jesus overturning the tables in the temple. We must direct our anger towards sin. It be driven by love. It should be short-lived. It should be focused on reconciliation and the restoration of God's truth.
