Title: Righteous training

6-28-2026

2 Timothy 3:16-17 All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness,
¹⁷ so that the servant of God may be thoroughly equipped for every good work.

Righteousness is the state being morally right or justified.

When you move from the place of believing into the place of knowing that you are the righteousness of God.

Something springs up from your inner being.

What comes up is gratitude and joy.

The state of being grateful for everything that you know the Lord has blessed you with.

Joy streams up within you no matter what is going on around you.

Gratitude and joy play a powerful role in this life.

Romans 12:2 Do not conform to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind. Then you will be able to test and approve what God's will is—his good, pleasing and perfect will.

When your mind is renewed, you BEGIN TO SEE what you have already been given.

And when you see it, gratitude rises naturally.

You are no longer trying to get something from God.

You are learning to live in what he has already provided.

This produces joy, not a temporary emotion, but a deep steady confidence that remains regardless of circumstances.

And that joy strengthens you.

It stabilizes you.

It keeps your mind anchored in truth even when everything around you is unstable.

This strength I'm talking about happens with you are about to give up then you are reminded that you are loved by the one you love and strength comes rushing in.

Now, let me open one more layer because this is where your life becomes truly impactful.

You are not only called to live this life for yourself.

You are called to reveal it to others.

When your life is aligned, when your mind is renewed, when your spirit is leading, you become a light.

Matthew 5:14

Not by effort, not by striving, but by existence.

People will see the difference.

They will sense the peace.

They will notice the authority.

And without you even trying, you will begin to influence them.

This is the power of a life that is fully aligned.

But even at this level, there is still more.

There is a deeper dimension of intimacy, a greater level of awareness, a stronger expression of his nature that goes beyond what most have experienced.

Now we step into the final dimension of this truth.

The place where everything we have spoken about comes together in perfect clarity and expression.

This is the life of deep intimacy with God.

Where your relationship with him is no longer based on effort, routine or even understanding alone, but on conscious union.

It is here that the believer stops striving to reach God and begins to live with the awareness that he has never been separated from him.

You were not trying to get closer to God.

You were learning to recognize how close he already is, how present he is within your very being.

And when this awareness becomes real to you, EVERYTHING changes.

The struggle fades.

The pressure disappears.

The uncertainty dissolves because now you are not living for God.

You are living with him. And more than not, he is living through you.

Now listen carefully.

This Intimacy is not measured by feelings.

It is not determined by emotional experiences or outward expressions.

This Intimacy is the constant awareness of his presence.

The quiet confidence that He is with you, in you, and working through you at all times.

Many are waiting to feel God before they believe he is near.

But the mature believer believes first and in believing becomes aware.

This awareness transforms your daily life.

It is no longer divided between spiritual moments and ordinary moments.

Every moment becomes sacred.

Every action becomes an opportunity for expression.

Every thought becomes a place of alignment.

This is where your life becomes a continuous walk with God.

Not something you visit but something you live in.

And here is where the final transformation takes place.

Your identity becomes your reality.

You no longer shift between who you are in Christ and who you feel like in the moment.

You become established, rooted, unmovable.

What you know in your spirit has fully shaped your thinking and your thinking has fully shaped your life.

This is the harmony we have been building toward.

Spirit, mind, and life aligned as one.

And when this alignment is established, there is a divine flow that begins to operate within you.

Decisions become clearer.

Not because you analyze more but because you are more aware.

Direction becomes natural not because you strive to find it but because you are connected to the one who leads you.

Peace becomes constant not because life is always easy but because your foundation is unshakable.

This is the life of rest.

Not inactivity but effortless function.

It is the place where you are no longer forcing faith but living from it.

You are no longer trying to think right, but your thinking has been made right through renewal.

You are no longer battling for identity, but resting in it.

And from this place, your life begins to carry a quiet authority.

Not loud, not forced, but undeniable.

You do not need to prove anything.

You do not need to convince anyone.

The life you live becomes the evidence.
People may not understand it at first, but they will see it.

They will see stability where there should be fear.

They will see peace where there should be anxiety.

They will see confidence where there should be doubt.
And that is the expression of Christ.

Not through words alone, but through a transformed life.

Now understand this.

This does not mean challenges will never come.

It does not mean circumstances will always be favorable.

But it means you were no longer moved by them.

You were no longer defined by them.

You were no longer controlled by them.

Because your life is anchored in something greater.

And from that place you respond with wisdom, with authority, with peace.

You do not react, you respond.

You do not struggle, you stand.

This is the maturity of the believer.

This is the fullness of what it means to walk in the spirit.

Now, let me bring this to its final truth.

You have already been given everything you need.

You are not lacking.

You are not incomplete.

You are not waiting for God to do something more.

He has already done it in Christ.

What remains is for your mind to fully align with that reality.

And as it does, your life will naturally express what has always been true within you.

So, stop looking outward for confirmation.

Stop measuring your life by what you feel or see.

Return to the word.

Establish your thinking.

Align your mind with your spirit.

And as you do, you will find that the struggle you once felt begins to disappear.

Not because life has changed, but because you have.

And when you have changed, everything else follows.

This is the journey from being born again to having a renewed mind to living from the inside out to expressing Christ naturally to walking in intimacy and finally to resting in complete alignment.

And this is where the believer was always meant to live.

Not in confusion, not in struggle, not in limitation, but in clarity, in authority, in peace.

So, stand firm in who you are.

Think in line with what God has said.

Live from the reality within you and let your life become the expression of what Jesus has already accomplished.
