

1. What would make someone your enemy?
2. Why would God laugh at our enemies?
3. Is David's request, "kill them not, let my people forget," contradictory to his request, "consume them till they are no more?"
4. Why must David focus on both God's strength and his steadfast love to find comfort when facing his enemies?
5. How would you answer a skeptic who rejects God because of the problem of evil (the problem of evil is the claim that suffering suggests that either God doesn't love us or he isn't powerful enough to help us)?
