

this coming week...

Group Spiritual Direction

There is a new to me song called Still Water (Psalm 23) that has been deeply meeting me this week. This idea that God provides still water in every valley of our life, that the peace of God is not dependent on any particular circumstance but that we can drink deeply from his still water in every circumstance. In my experience it is only dependent on prayer, the practice of His presence and out of that practice our eyes are opened to his deep consolations of beauty and joy. Whether you are participating in group direction or not, I invite you to explore and discover the answer to this question over the next couple weeks: are there places of “still water” God is providing in your every day life? How are you treasuring these graces in your heart?
