

this coming week...

Reflection and Potluck

We talk so often of the "now and not yet" paradox of this life in Christ. Of course, it's easier to see the "not yet." I feel the "not yet" with every explosively angry child, every runny nose, every grieving friend, every wildfire season, every headline.

This song (link below) brought me viscerally to the "now." What's true today, never changing, and so easily forgotten. What's already been gifted, given, done. "You give me more than I could ever ask for. You give me you." As much as I ask for grace, peace, comfort, healing... I already have him. And that's "for as long as I live, and even after it."

I had to pull the car over to shed a few tears when I heard this for the first time this week, and I knew I had to share it with you.
