Ancient Jewish Wedding Customs

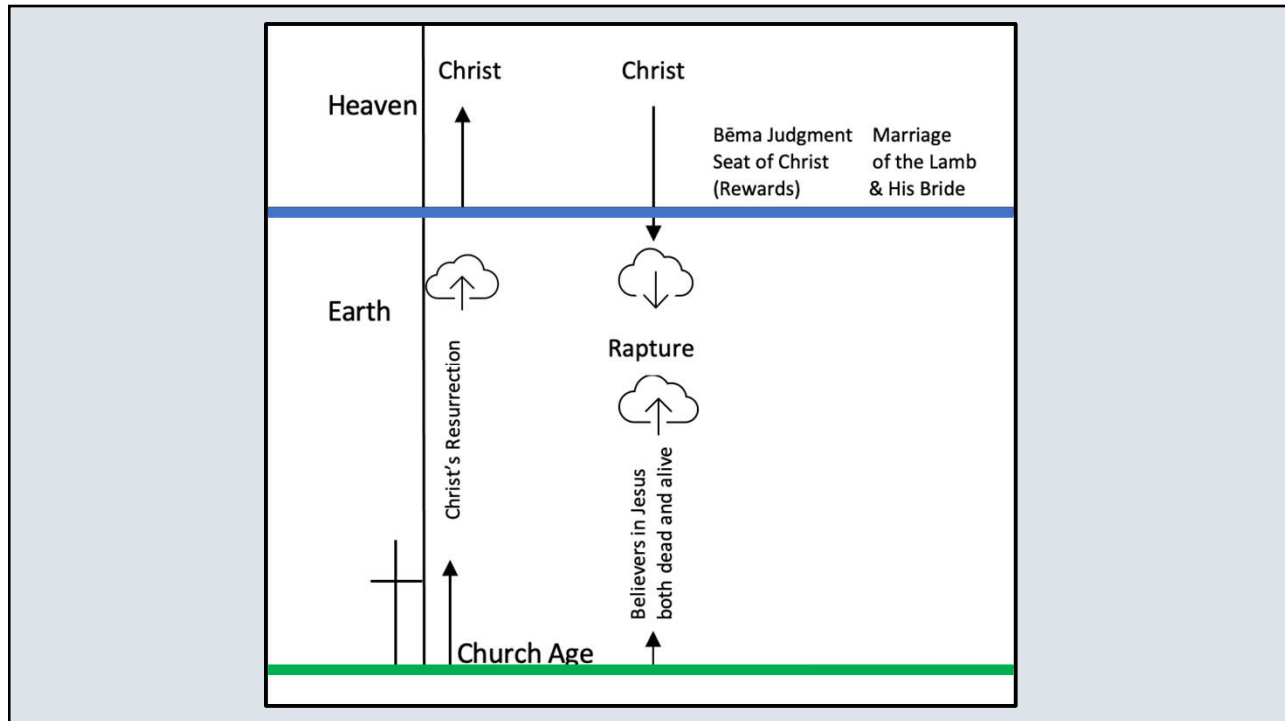

- The father of the groom often selected a bride for his son.
- The father of the groom paid a bride price, in essence to “purchase” the bride.
- The groom would prepare a place for the bride in his father’s house.

Ancient Jewish Wedding Customs

- When preparations were complete, it was the father who gave permission to his son to go and get the bride.
- The bride would not know the exact day or hour so she kept her oil lamp ready at all times in case her groom came at night.
- The groom would sound the shofar (ram’s horn) to announce his arrival. He would lead the bridal procession back to the father’s house where they would be married & enjoy a wedding celebration often lasting 7 days.
