- Nursery #3 on the South Hall (front entrance) for 2-3 years old

Children's Churches are available for children from age 3 through 6th grade. (Morning only)

Welcome

AUGUST 30TH

The fall season here in the States is a visual reminder of Jesus' words to His disciples: "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" (Matthew 9:37-38).

One of the ways that our church, as well as many other unaffiliated Baptist churches, reaffirms and renews our commitment to praying for harvest laborers and participating in the work of those on the field is through our annual missions conference.

Missions conference is not something we do just to fill a few days on the church calendar. It is one of the most important weeks for our church in the calendar year and is an event we approach with clear purposes in mind.

What are the goals for our church, or any other church, for hosting a missions conference?

1. To See the Great Commission Come Alive

During a missions conference, a church has the chance to see the Great Commission come alive as missionaries from around the world gather to give testimonies and present their mission fields. Newer Christians are able to understand the big picture of the Great Commission and their church's far-reaching impact through missions. Seasoned Christians, reminded of the need, develop a stronger burden for the lost.

2. To Develop Relationships with Missionaries

One of the great advantages and defining characteristics of independent Baptists is its local church-based, rather than denomination-based, missions program. Following the Acts 13 model in this way, allows churches to have direct relationships with even more missionaries than are sent from within their own congregation.

At missions conference, there are even greater opportunities to meet the missionaries present, seek to understand the unique challenges and needs of their fields, and learn how to pray for them.
