

THE PROBLEMS WITH PROCRASTINATION

SAMUEL R. BLAKES

Ecclesiastes 11:4

He who observes the wind will not sow, and he who regards the clouds will not reap.

Introduction

Procrastination is the silent thief of time and opportunity. In our fast-paced, goal-oriented culture, we often delay decisions and actions, believing we'll have time later. However, Scripture warns us against this mindset. Let's explore the problems with procrastination through three alliterated points that resonate with our lives today.

#1 PARALYSIS OF POTENTIAL

Scriptural Support:

James 4:17

Therefore, to him who knows to do good and does not do it, to him it is sin.

Commentary:

Procrastination can lead to a paralysis of potential. When we hesitate to act on our ideas and aspirations, we stifle our growth.

Just as the farmer who stares at the wind misses the planting season, we too can miss out on opportunities meant for us.

The call to action in James reminds us that knowing what's right is not enough; we must act. In a progressive world where innovation is key, hesitating can leave us behind.

#2 POSTPONEMENT OF PURPOSE

Scriptural Support:

Proverbs 27:1

Do not boast about tomorrow, for you do not know what a day may bring forth.

Commentary:

Every moment we put off our dreams and responsibilities can lead to a postponement of our purpose. Life is unpredictable, and putting things off can mean missing out on God's plans for us.

Proverbs gently nudges us to recognize the fragility of time. In our ambitious lives, we often dream big but hesitate to act.

The challenge here is to embrace our purpose today rather than waiting for the "perfect" moment that may never come.

#3 DETERIORATION OF DETERMINATION

Scriptural Support:

Hebrews 12:1

Therefore we also, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which so easily ensnares us, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us.

Commentary:

Procrastination leads to a deterioration of our determination. The longer we delay, the harder it becomes to muster the courage to start.

Hebrews reminds us of the importance of shedding distractions and running the race with endurance. For a young, upwardly mobile audience, this is crucial.

Each day spent in indecision can weigh us down, making it harder to pursue our aspirations. Let's reignite our determination and run with purpose, understanding that each step taken today is a stride toward fulfilling our divine calling.

#4 SABOTAGE OF SUCCESS

Scriptural Support:

Galatians 6:7

Do not be deceived: God is not mocked; for whatever a man sows, that he will also reap.

Commentary:

Procrastination often leads to the sabotage of our own success. When we delay taking action, we inflict self-wounds that hinder our progress.

This passage from Galatians reminds us of the principle of sowing and reaping. When we choose to procrastinate, we sow seeds of doubt, fear, and missed opportunities, ultimately reaping the consequences of our inaction.

For those striving to achieve their goals, procrastination acts as a self-imposed barrier. It's like setting up obstacles on a racetrack; the only person we hinder is ourselves. In a world that encourages us to seize the moment, we must recognize that our greatest adversary can be our own habits and choices.

By taking responsibility for our actions and acknowledging that procrastination can lead to setbacks, we empower ourselves to dismantle those barriers and pursue success with determination.

#Conclusion (Extended)

As we reflect on these points, it's clear that procrastination can lead to paralysis of potential, postponement of purpose, deterioration of determination, and sabotage of success. Each of these areas highlights how inaction can hinder our spiritual and personal growth. Let's resolve to confront procrastination head-on, understanding that God has equipped us to act boldly. The seeds we sow today will shape our futures, so let's plant with intention and purpose.
