Having displayed for Pharaoh, Egypt, and Israel his sovereignty over all creation through the nine mighty acts, God now draws this encounter to a momentous conclusion. Pharaoh has insisted on being treated like a god, resisting God's rightful claim on his life. In the tenth plague, Pharaoh finally concedes with his mouth (though not from his heart) the supremacy of God, and frees the people of Israel. The tenth plague is so significant, that God commands Israel to make the month in which it occurred the first month of the Hebrew year (Abib is in March–April). From this exceptional act of God, we learn five great truths:

1. The _____ for _____ is sudden death.
2. The _____ from _____ is substitutionary atonement.
3. The _____ that _____ us belongs to the Lamb.
4. The _____ for _____ is remembering God.
5. The _____ of _____ is to pass on the faith.
