The tenth reason on which our faith is based is found in the rewarding endeavor of mentoring other people in the faith. A mentor is someone more advanced in experience and knowledge, who intentionally transfers that knowledge to another person, to equip them to be successful in their vocation (calling). Besides experience and knowledge, there are at least three requirements to be a mentor and each of them are a cause for joy in themselves.

1. _____: The joy of a clear conscience in obeying the _____ (19–24).

2. _____: The joy of the intelligent investment of logistical _____ (25–28).

3. _____: The joy of promoting Christ by promoting _____ (29–30).
