Grammar/Literature

This week in Shurley English we will discuss interjections. The last of our 8 parts of speech! Interjections can be tricky because they are grammatically unconnected to a sentence. Scholars can struggle to determine whether to use a common or an end mark to separate the interjection from the sentence. We'll discuss the difference this week.

We are nearing the end of Bilbo's adventure. This week we'll continue to work on reading chapters 10-14. I imagine that we'll complete the reading guide for those chapters before the break, but we'll hold that loosely.

Just for your information, the next book that we'll read is called The Bronze Bow by Elizabeth George Speare. I suspect that we'll begin this book before Easter.

Quarter 4 Suggestions

It's difficult to believe, but this week is the last week of Q3. As I told the scholars, they are now closer to grade 7 than to grade 4 and 5. As such, they will find that they will given more freedom and responsibility. Sometimes the expectation from teachers and the ownership from the students take a bit to meet up. Please see below for some suggestions for how to support your child without taking over for your child.

1. Ask them, "What big projects or assignments do you have this week?"
2. Follow up with, "How long will you need to complete this work? What is your plan?" Allow them to tell you their plans instead of telling them what they need to do.
3. If your family calendar is especially full, make sure to take other activities into account when planning for the week's work.

Students will develop acting, scriptwriting, and design skills through a game-based approach focused on creative expression. Campers will thrive in a positive and encouraging environment centered on Christian values.

"This was different from other educational theaters in that we used games to teach them, and we had to show that to the kids and to the parents. Because they thought, 'oh we were just playing games,' but no. See how this principle is implemented in here? As to other theaters I've worked in, it's very much like, 'Okay we're going to teach you how to act right now.' But we didn't tell them. We were just playing games."
