THOUGHTS ON THE JOURNEY

There was once a young lady who grew up in a small, out of the way town. There was nothing particularly impressive about her town, nor were the people of the town viewed with a lot of respect. However, she grew up in a loving home and was pretty contented with her life. The day came that she graduated and married her high school sweetheart.

At first her marriage seemed to go great. It was everything she had dreamed of, and though they didn't have much, she was happy. Then, everything started to go wrong. Financial pressures, the pressures of life, and relationship struggles all begin to take their toll. Much to her dismay, the marriage ended. She found herself as a twenty-year-old divorcee and did not know what to do.

It wasn't long and there was a new man in her life. He was different from the first. He was patient and loving. He seemed to love her in spite of all her mess. Instead of her weaknesses being a problem, they almost seemed to make him love her more. It was a bit of a whirlwind dating relationship, but they soon married. Then she discovered the man she was married to was not the man she had dated. Anger issues and trust issues soon surfaced. All of this was more than she could handle, and this marriage ended, too.

Soon there was a third marriage, but the baggage from the first two marriages proved too much and doomed this third marriage, then a fourth, and finally fifth. What was wrong with her? Why was she unable to make a marriage work? Clearly, she was the issue, right? What was so unlovable about her? It didn't matter now. There was so much water under the bridge at this point, she felt she was of little value.

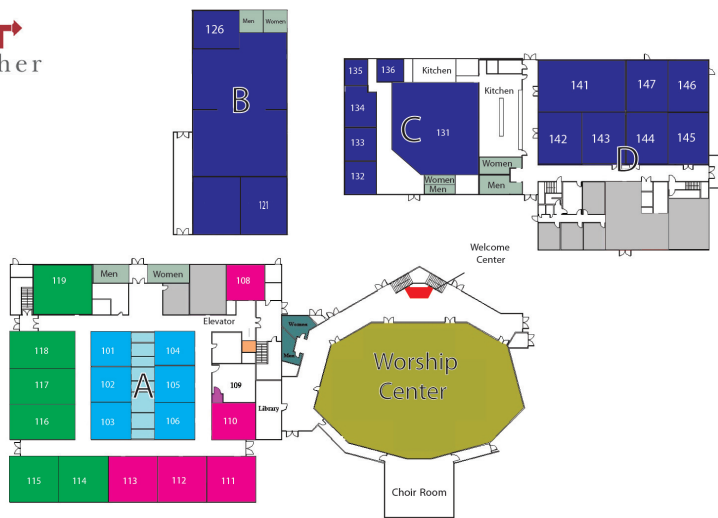

Then one day she met a man. This man was different than the others. In fact, this man seemed to have zero romantic interest in her, but at the same time cared for her deeply. He talked to her about her past failures, about life, and even about worship. He talked to her about what a real relationship with God would look like. Then he revealed the fact that he, himself, was the Messiah. He showed her she was still of great value, that her sin could be forgiven, that past mistakes did not matter. He showed her that she could still live a life of great meaning.

In the end, she was forgiven, redeemed, and restored. She shared her story with the people of the town, who had previously looked down on her for her life failures. Her story was so incredible that the people of the town came to follow this same Jesus that she had met, seemingly by happenstance. The once lost sinner was showing other people the way to redemption. She discovered that she truly had been, "Beautifully Broken."

SERMON NOTES

BEAUTIFULLY BROKEN

Living Water
John 4:7-30, 39-42

THE BIG IDEA: Jesus Christ meets us at the very point of our brokenness to bring redemption and healing.

1. An _____ encounter (7-15).
2. Brokenness _____ (16-18).
3. Genuine _____ (19-26).
4. A _____ of hope (27-30).
5. The _____ of a testimony (39-42).

Rewind

1. Have there been times of brokenness or despair where God has made himself known to you? Share.
2. Have you experienced a time when God precisely and clearly pointed out your sin? How did you respond?
3. Why do you think the woman at the well turned the conversation toward worship when Jesus pointed out her sin?
4. Why do you believe this woman's testimony was so powerful? Do you think ours can be equally powerful?
