1. What is one situation where you have a hard time yielding—driving, work, family, relationships, or somewhere else? Keep it fun. What makes it so hard for you to give up the right of way?
2. What tends to keep you from slowing down enough to notice God—busyness, your phone, worry, work, entertainment, something else? What could you intentionally change this week to create some quiet?
3. Where in your life are you most tempted to say, "God, I know what You say, but I want..."? Why is that particular area difficult to surrender?
4. If you genuinely prayed, "God, You have the right of way," what is one thing in your life that might need to change? What would actually yielding to God look like this week?
5. What else did God say to you through this message?
