

Give Me a Sign
Week three - "Counsel of the Saints"
2 Kings 5:1-15
Bottom line: We need each other to help us hear God and see God and understand God. He's too big for any one of us to grasp and follow on our own.

1. Where do you see yourself in Naaman's story—especially in his expectations of how God should work?
2. Have you ever received helpful wisdom from someone you initially overlooked or resisted? What made it hard to listen?
3. What might your "Jordan River" be: a person, church community, practice, or perspective through which God may be asking you to humble yourself and listen?
4. Why do you think independence can feel safer or more appealing than needing other people in our faith?
5. The message describes Christians as both sinners and saints. How can that truth shape the way we give and receive counsel?
6. Who are the trusted people God may already be using to help you hear, see, or understand Him more clearly?
7. What is one practical step you can take this week to move from a "me and God only" mindset toward deeper connection and accountability with the body of Christ?
