

When Good Becomes god

Week three - "Teach Me To Want"

Romans 8.1-15, Jeremiah 31.33, and Ezekiel 11.19-20

Bottom line: We can change what we believe and we can work on changing our behavior, but until we truly want something GREATER than whatever the thing is we're settling for, it's always going to be an uphill battle.

1. Big picture: What are the things you want most in life?
2. What are the things you want most right now?
3. Is there any tension or discrepancy between what your head wants and what your heart wants? What does that look like for you? In other words, do you have any desires or wants that work against whatever it is you think or know you need?
4. Read Romans 8.1-15
  - a. How do you resonate with the tension Paul is describing between the Spirit and the flesh?
  - b. Why is it important for us to know that God wants us to be free? What does that mean?
  - c. How have you experienced, or not experienced, what Paul describes in verse 5, i.e., living in accordance with the Spirit and having your mind set on what the Spirit desires?
5. What would it look like for you to desire God more?
6. What, if anything, is standing in the way of God being your only "must have"?
