

Where's the Faith? Stay in Your Lane!

Discussion Questions:

What is the easiest area of your life for you to let God sit on the throne?

What area of your life is most tempting to take God's place on the throne?

What spiritual activities/disciplines do you feel help you draw near to God?

What spiritual activities that seem to work for others do not help you draw near to God?

Why do you think some people/churches tend to make the activity/discipline a god...the end, instead of the means to an end?

When was the last time you consciously and purposely humbled yourself before God? What caused it?

Why do you think we naturally try to take the throne and try to be God?

What have you personally found helpful in the constant battle to "stay in your lane" and not try to take the throne?

Are you a member of a church? If yes, why? If not, why not?

Can you share a story of a time you purposely drew near to God, and He drew near to you?
