“Anyone who has ears should listen!”

Matthew 13:9

“A teacher or preacher may give an eloquent address on the gospel, or explain ably some O.T. prophecy about Christ, but when the sermon is done, it is not done; something remains to be done by the hearers in life, and if they content themselves with sentimental admiration or with enjoying the emotional or mental treat, they need not imagine that this is religion.”

The background of the image features a close-up of water droplets on a dark, reflective surface, likely glass. The droplets are of various sizes and are illuminated from the right, creating bright highlights and soft shadows. On the right side, there is a large, bright, circular light flare that transitions from white to a soft yellow and then to a dark blue, suggesting a light source like the sun or moon. A semi-transparent white rectangular box is centered in the image, containing the text.

(Pg.536)

“The glass of the Word is not like our ordinary looking-glass, which merely shows us our external features; but, according to the Greek of our text, the man sees in it ‘the face of his birth’; that is, the face of his nature. He that reads and hears the Word may see not only his actions there, but his motives, his desires, his inward condition.”

RECOGNIZE RELIGION
AROUND US

“...James cuts to the bottom line here when he says that rather than being a matter of compromise and verbosity, true religion is a matter of purity and humility.”

Courson

“True religion does not merely give something for the relief of the distressed, but it visits them, it takes the oversight of them, it takes them under its care...It goes to their houses, and speaks to their hearts; it relieves their wants, sympathizes with them in their distresses, instructs them in divine things, and recommends them to God. And all this it does for the Lord’s sake. This is the religion of Christ.”

Clarke
