

YOUTH SUNDAY

PAST • PRESENT • FUTURE

Jesus does not see children and young people as interruptions, or problems to solve. He welcomes them as they are and makes space for them among us.

Today, we celebrate the generations who have come before us, the young people who are living and growing among us now, and the generations who will come after us. We consider what it means to be intentional about the faith we share —not simply through words – but through the lives we live, the welcome we offer, and the purposes we help young people discover.

Message Scripture: Mark 10:14-16

Prayer

God of all generations, thank you for those who taught us, loved us, prayed for us, and made room for us. Help us to do the same for those who are growing up in our midst. Help us be intentional in the ways we nurture faith, purposeful in the ways we serve, and courageous to make room for young people to belong, lead, question, grow, and discover your call. May we honor what has been, faithfully live in what is, and prepare with hope for what is still to come. Amen

Questions for Reflection

What have you learned from the generations who came before you that you want to carry forward?

How can you intentionally make room for the next generation to belong, participate, lead, and hear God's call?
