SERMON NOTES

Songs of Revolution

1. "Rhyming" Stories

Luke showcases striking structural parallels between the announcements given to Mary and Zechariah:

- Both were told their news by the angel _____.
- Both will experience _____ births.
- Both are explicitly told what the children will be _____.
- Both individuals ask questions:
 - Zechariah asks out of _____.
 - Mary asks out of _____.

2. The Divine Shadow and Pure Creation

- This deliberate language references the Shechinah of God, historically pointing to God's _____ place among His people (as seen in Exodus 40:34-35).
- Luke uses this imagery on purpose to draw our minds back to the _____—the Spirit hovering or overshadowing the waters in Genesis.
- This framing makes it clear that the incarnation is not a carnal event, but an act of _____.

3. The Magnificat (Luke 1:46-55)

Mary's song is beautifully structured as a Chiastic Structure, which places the most vital message directly at its core:

- THE REVOLUTIONARY CENTER: The Great _____ (v. 51-53).

He scatters the proud, brings down the mighty, exalts the humble, and fills the hungry while sending the rich away _____.

4. The Benedictus: A Priestly Vocation

This deliverance allows God's people to finally fulfill their true, internal, priestly vocation: to be a holy _____ of _____ (the center).

5. What is the True Gospel?

- Is God's plan merely about saving you personally to whisk you away to "the good place" when you die?
- Perhaps the Gospel is far more than "Getting to _____ when I _____".
- Instead, it calls us to embrace the power of our God now, and _____ this _____ the way only He can.
