Stepped Forward

When I was in 6th grade, someone broke something off the teacher's desk. The teacher was understandably upset and wanted to find out who had done it. So, she had everyone lay their heads on their desks in absolute silence all through recess until someone confessed. After what seemed like an eternity (probably only 3 minutes), the nicest girl in class stood up and admitted that she had done it. The whole class (including the teacher, most likely) knew that she had not done it but was taking the blame for the rest of the class so we could go to recess. The teacher accepted the confession and let the class go to recess while she stayed behind.

Needless to say, she was a hero, and every boy in the class was forever in love. While I will never know who actually committed the crime, someone stepped up and took the blame so that others could go free. I remember thinking, "That's the bravest person I will ever know."

A similar moment, but on an infinitely more meaningful scale, happens in John 18, where Jesus is arrested. He steps forward, meeting what is about to happen head-on, all the while thinking of others. This morning, we take a look at this incredible story and what effect it might have on our lives.

I. The _____.

- A. The drain would have been red with _____.
- B. Jesus is making the connection between this garden and the garden of _____.
- C. Jesus calls Himself the _____.

II. The _____.

- A. Is a metaphor for God's _____.
 - 1. Jeremiah 25: 15-16
 - 2. Isaiah 51:17
 - 3. Revelation 14: 9-10
- B. Knowing all of this, Jesus stilled _____.

Questions for Reflection

1. What difference does it make for you that Jesus knew not only that He was going to endure torture, but God's justice for our sin?
2. How can we use this kind of courage in our own lives? To "step forward" even in the face of difficulty?
3. What does it mean to you that Jesus told Peter to sheathe his sword? What does this mean for how Christians should respond to persecution?

EN ESPAÑOL

Notas Del Sermon - Un Paso Hacia Delante

Cuando estaba en sexto grado, alguien había roto algo del escritorio del professor. El professor estaba comprensiblemente molesto y quería saber quién lo había hecho. Por lo tanto, hizo que todos insistieran en su escritorio, en absoluto silencio, durante todo el recreo, hasta que alguien confesó. Después de lo que parecía una eternidad (probablemente solo 3 minutos), la chica más simpática de la clase se puso de pie y admitió que lo había hecho. Toda la clase (incluido lo más probable es que la maestra) sabía que no lo había hecho, pero estaba recibiendo una bala por el resto de la clase, para que pudiéramos ir al recreo. La maestra aceptó la confesión y dejó que la clase fuera al recreo, mientras ella se quedaba atrás.

No hace falta decir que ella era una heroína, y todos los chicos de la clase estaban enamorados para siempre. Aunque nunca sabré quién realmente cometió el crimen, alguien dio un paso adelante, asumió la culpa, para que otros pudieran liberarse. Recuerdo haber pensado que esa es la persona más valiente que jamás conoceré.
