The Boy in the Stars

By Camden Bruce

There once was a boy
Who brimmed with joy
When he looked to the sky.
He desired not for a toy
He just loved to enjoy
The twilight stars up so high.
He made a pledge one day,
To study and avoid play
So he could be an astronaut.
The boy learned to obey
So he could pave the way
So his dreams aren't for nought.
He breezes through school
Feeling way too cool
To not attain his goal.
Alas, he was a fool
Life is callous and cruel
And he wasn't in control.
Some bullies came around
With their grunty sound
They shoved the Boy over,
But would he stay downed?
He raised up off the ground
He kept going like a rover.
The bullies kept trying,
But the boy was flying
Right through all of his classes.
His vitality was undying
The odds he was defying
Stupefying all of the masses.
He soon was in college
Procuring more knowledge
Than anyone that was his age.
Soon this was acknowledged
Now there was no blockage
Space would soon be his stage.
From college he went
Into the few percent
Who were accepted for training.
He made a substantial indent
On history's intent
For his dream he was obtaining.
The day was finally here

Encouragement he could hear
As he entered the giant contraption
He had absolutely no fear
As the juncture drew near,
He would be the head of the action.
A vertical line he'd go
Leaving all that was below
The rocket was set,
ready for takeoff.
Then a ravishing light show
But all of the sudden, oh no!
The auxiliary pieces
wouldn't shake off!
With the pieces still attached
The thrust was outmatched
For the weight of them was immense.
By the time they detached
The rocket had crashed
And burned with flames raging intense.
The boy's life was done
Or perhaps it had just begun,
For when he aroused
from his death
He witnessed the only Son
Of God, the faithful one
The boy could only grip his breath.
God called out to him
As the Angels sang a hymn.
God told that no sin was too tall
No story too drab or dim
Even nihilism wasn't too grim
For God not to be able to forgive all.
Then it was the boy
Who realized his ploy
To reach the stars had been done
The perfect star he could enjoy
All while having eternal joy
Was Christ, the solitary son.

Why Do You Want To Go To Heaven? Revelation 21:1-4

The result and final destination motivates us to continue going forward regardless of what we are doing. Heaven is the final destination for those who follow Jesus, and that is motivation in itself. Let's look at four results we experience when we reach heaven that motivate us.

I. I am V_____

II. I am in the M_____ of T_____ who C_____ before.

III. I am no L_____ S_____

IV. I am U_____ being F_____ by

Please fill out an attendance card and pass it to the end of the aisle.
