SERMON NOTES

The Chaff and Fire

The Word Bypasses Power (Luke 3:1-2)

- Luke lists seven names of worldly power (emperor, governors, tetrarchs, high priests), yet the text deliberately changes the subject.
- The word of God did not go to the palaces; it came to John, the son of Zechariah, in the _____.

2. Preparing the Road (Luke 3:4-6)

- Ancient servants went ahead of a traveling king to _____ the road.
- John's "road-work" is directed at the _____ readying people to receive the King.

3. A Baptism That Broke the Rules

- The Disruption: John's baptism fit none of the traditional washings. Because it was "one-and-done," it most closely resembled the rite for Gentile converts.
- By doing this, John treated _____ like Gentiles, signaling they needed to start completely over.

4. Repentance with Legs (Luke 3:7-9, 10-14)

When the people asked, "What then shall we do?", John gave specific commands:

- The Crowds: Practice radical _____ (share excess tunics/food).
- Tax Collectors: End systemic _____ (collect no more than authorized).
- Soldiers: Reject _____ power (do not extort, be content with wages).

5. The Climax: Winnowing (Luke 3:16-17)

- The Image of the Threshing Floor: The heavy grain falls back, while the weightless _____ blows away and burns.
- Jesus is the dividing line between true allegiance and superficial _____.

6. Application & Closing: Step Into the River

- John doesn't emphasize flawless ritual, but how faith shows up in your _____.
- John begins his ministry at the _____ River—the exact place Joshua once led Israel into the Promised Land.

His message to the people: You think you are home, but you are still in _____. You must come back through the water and re-enter as a _____ people.

Final Challenge: The Gospel demands that you step into the river, lay down your _____, and yield total allegiance to the King.
