SERMON NOTES

The Sermon on the Plain

Picking the Team

After praying on the mountain, Jesus calls out _____ apostles. To any Jewish onlooker, this was a clear signal: Jesus was forming the nucleus of a _____ Israel, mirroring the twelve tribes.

The Great Covenantal Inversion:

- Blessed: The Poor, The Hungry, Those Weeping Now, The _____.
- Woe: The Rich, The Full, Those Laughing Now, Those _____.

The Remez of the Covenant:

- Echoes Deuteronomy 27–28 and Isaiah 5.
- “Woe” (Hoy): Not an angry curse, but _____ grief over a collapsing system.
- “Blessed” (Ashrei): Names the poor and broken as favored _____ of the new regime.

Reflecting the Father’s Character (Luke 6:36):

- The Pharisees emphasized: “Be _____.”
- Matthew recorded: “Be _____.”
- Luke emphasizes: “Be _____, just as your Father is.....”
- What truly sets God apart is His _____.

The Center

The structure of the Sermon on the Plain is _____, placing the parable of the blind leading the blind at its literary center.

In the ancient rabbi-disciple model, the ultimate goal was not just to learn facts, but to _____ the teacher.

If you follow the blind religious elite, you become blind; if you follow Jesus, fully trained, you will become _____.

So What Now?

1. The System: Are you investing in the fragile, passing “woe” system (wealth, comfort, approval, status)?

2. The People: Who is your _____ right now (difficult relative, coworker, opposite political side)?

3. The Foundation: Are you only singing on Sunday, or _____ on His words on Monday.

“King Jesus does not rule from a distant mountain of power. He meets us on the level plain and calls us to conquer hatred with relentless, uncompromised _____.”
